OGDEN MEN AT U. A. I. DINNER

Party of 65 Go to Hear James
A. Emery Talk at Salt Lake

James A. Emery, chief counsel for the national industrial council, with headquarters at Washington, D. C., was the principal speaker at the second annual banquet of the Utah Associated Industries held in the ball room of the Hotel Utah at Salt Lake, last night. Mr. Emery addressed more than 600 members of the organization, 65 of whom were from Ogden, and chose as his subject "American Industries and Public Affairs."

In his address Mr. Emery stated that every organization must be subordinate to law and when it oversteps its bounds and threatens the social structure of the nation, it is then time for the government to step in and call a halt, according to W. F. Bossmar, secretary of the local branch.

He particularly emphasized the regulation of combinations of whatever character, as a means of safeguarding public interests. He denied that there was what is termed an insatiable right to strike, but admitted that a person had the right to quit when properly notice was given. He held that all people were answerable to society for their acts and could only exercise certain so-called liberties when the doing so did not endanger life and property.

Among those who made the trip from Ogden are the following: George Vangstad, F. T. Williams, Robert Boyd, J. C. McFarland, Ray Boyle, P. W. Brewer, J. S. Carver, J. C. Carver, J. S. Daniels, J. H. Waugh, J. H. Hollister, L. S. Hodgson, W. Oswald Jackson, E. E. Pace, D. H. Pape, J. T. Hill, Joe Chaplain, H. W. Pape, J. H. F. East, J. W. Wilcox, R. B. Minnoch, D. O. Minnoch, D. K. Sturges, Fred M. Nye, E. P. Hundley, W. Fred Bossmar, W. H. Shearman, J. O. Read, J. G. Read, E. C. Richardson, P. C. Richardson, D. W. Rawson, W. W. Rawson, J. E. Blum, F. J. Stevens, C. H. Stevens, L. H. Van Dyke, E. T. Saunders, S. H. Hendershot, T. E. Thomas, W. H. Spangenberg, W. L. Wattle, H. E. Wheelwright, P. T. Wright, J. E. Wright, Albert Whitmeyer, C. F. Grout, W. B. Porterfield, R. M. Hoggan, Vera Salter, Neils Erickson, P. E. Waugh, J. H. Barnard, E. H. Altier, H. P. Silver, R. H. Dodge, George B. Whitecar, J. G. Stone, J. R. Henderson, F. W. Cross, H. Jury Visits Scene of Fatal R. R. Accident

One of the hardest fought damage cases which has been heard in the district court this year is drawing to a close in Judge A. E. Pratt's division of the court. The case is that of George H. Butler, administrator for the estate of Ormand H. Butler, who was killed by an Oregon Short Line train at the Twelfth street crossing in April last year. The plaintiff asks $30,000 for the death of Mr. Butler and $500 for wreckage of the automobile in which he was riding.

The case has been on trial for ten days, but arguments are being heard this morning and it is believed that it will go in the hands of the jury this afternoon.

Yesterday the jurors were taken to the Twelfth street crossing, where the accident occurred. The jurors were accompanied by Judge Pratt, court officials and attorneys for both sides.

Scores of photographs of the crossing have been submitted, showing the crossing from all angles.

S. J. Harris, attorney for the plaintiff, began his argument shortly before noon. C. R. Hollingsworth, attorney for the defendant company, will present his arguments this afternoon and the case is expected to then go to the jury.

To Make Survey of County Canned Goods

Under the supervision of Miss Ellen Agren, county home demonstration agent, a survey, to ascertain the amount of meat, vegetables and fruit canned throughout the county, is being made. The purpose of the survey is to ascertain whether or not the canning demonstrations and the circular letters sent out last summer produced good results.

The data will be compiled to show the result of the year's work. Canned poultry, beef, pork, other meats, beans, peas, corn and other vegetables, dried corn, and other vegetables preserved through this method, dried apples and other dried fruits are included in the list upon which the women of the county will make a report.

Colorado Aggies Go to Logan for Game

Coach P. T. Hughes of the Colorado Aggies, in company with his gridlers, twenty strong, departed this morning for Logan, where they are scheduled to do battle today against the fast Utah Aggie aggregation. The Rocky mountain title for 1920 hinges on the outcome of the contest today.

"Although we will have two first string men out of the contest today on account of injuries, we expect to be returned victors," said Hughes. "The Utah Aggies no doubt have a flashy aggregation in harness and while we expect to win, we expect a tough battle."

Percy Hansen, star back on the Aggie team, will be out of the fray today on account of injuries, but Lew Falck, Ogdenite, is expected to add the Loganites in their attempts at victory.

HALLOWE'EN IS HERE TONIGHT; KEEP EYE OPEN

Tonight's the night. Chain your gate to the gatepost and set out the old muzzle loader with the charge of rock salt. In addition to being terrified with horrible looking pumpkin heads and apparitions in white garments, someone might swipe your automobile and use it to decorate a roof or something.

Hallowe'en comes annually and is regarded by certain juvenile "demons" as the time when the world is their oyster. Dogs have their days, the cats their nights, and boys have Hallowe'en.

Be sure and leave a quantity of wicker porch furniture hanging around loose. It doesn't cost much to replace and if something nice and handy is left around, it may be the means of preventing some gang of young outlaws from carrying away the chimney, or the roof, or maybe the garage or furnace.

We know a farmer who is well liked—not by boys of his community and he has already taken steps to eliminate Hallowe'en depredations.

He has dismantled all his wagons, buggies, mowing machines, etc., and stored them in the top of his barn. He's willing to give odds, however, that the vehicles are "resembled" by morning, astride the ridge pole of the barn. He's grained the roof, too.

Captain Jonathan Jones says that while he dislikes to interfere with harmless fun, the officers of the police force, together with a number of reserves who will be called out, will take their pleasure this evening in pursuing gate lifters. In event that any such are caught, they will be organized in a chain gang, it is claimed, and after a night at the city jail, will be taken out tomorrow morning on a salvaging expedition and will replace gates, furniture, and other effects.

The police also warned Hallowe'en pranksters against interfering with the blue books at the polling places. Tearing these down will result in arrest and a fine of $100, it was said.

Four Socialists in University Faculty

SALT LAKE, Oct. 30.—There are four Socialists numbered among the faculty members of the University of Utah. This became known yesterday when four out of twenty-three ballots cast by instructors in a straw vote were on a straight Socialist ticket.

Of the ballot counted up to last night, Harding led Cox by a small majority. The other offices on the ticket were for secretary of state, governor and superintendent of public instruction. The Republican ticket led in every instance with the exception of the choice for secretary of state, where Albert B. Thomas, the university register and secretary on the Democratic ticket, was the popular favorite.

Voting on the league of nations, the university students were in favor of the treaty with no reservations, as desired by President Wilson.

To Close Addresses on Political History

The story of the minor parties in the political history of America is not more interesting than the accounting of the policies that have given rise to the lesser as well as to the greater parties that have attained power, according to the Rev. John Edward Carver who will preach on this topic in the First Presbyterian church tomorrow.

"The political history of America as told in the rise and conflict of the ideas and aims as well as reforms that have been the cause of political life," will be the theme of the closing sermon on Great Parties and Policies of American History at the First Presbyterian church. Miss Mildred Ware will sing two solos.
